

The Thing and I: Understanding the Relationship Between User and Product

fun pleasure
non-utilitarian UX holistic hedonic ludic value
joy dazzling stimulating

UX as buzzword

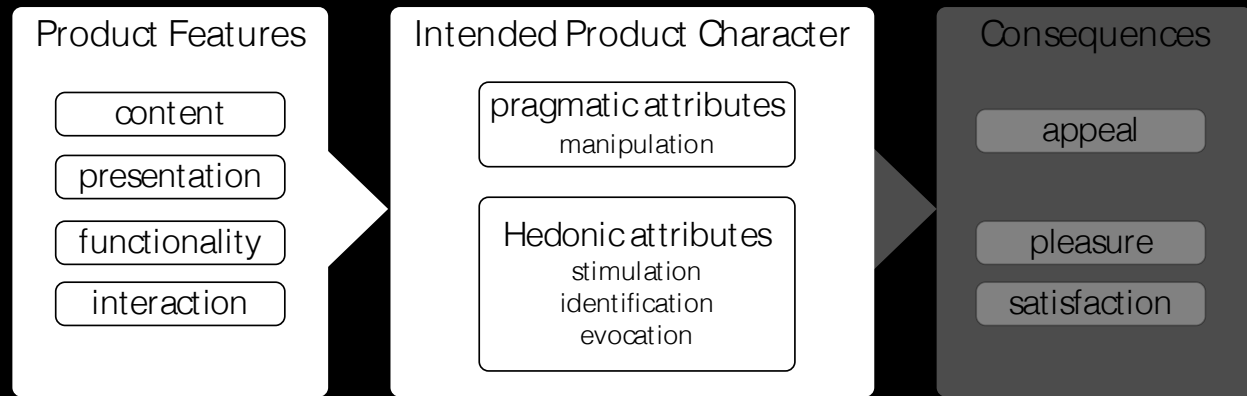

Few models

No coherence

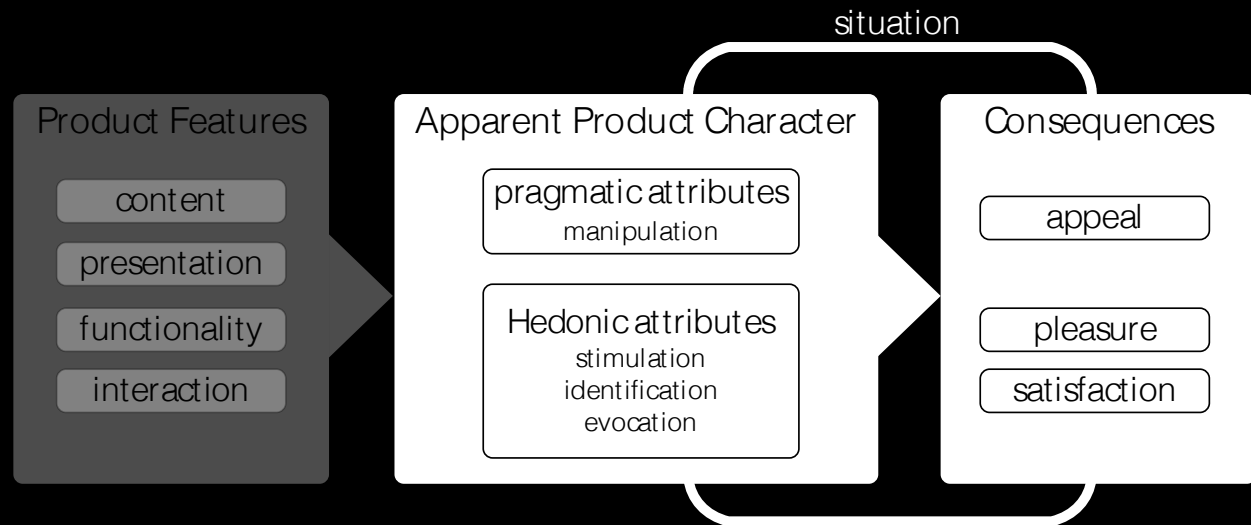

Often simplistic

- Marc Hassenzahl -

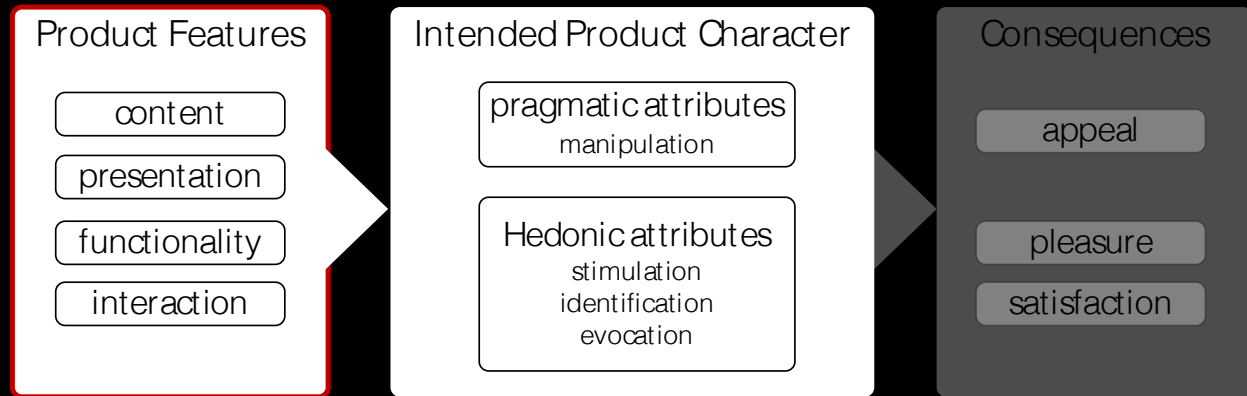

Designer
perspective:

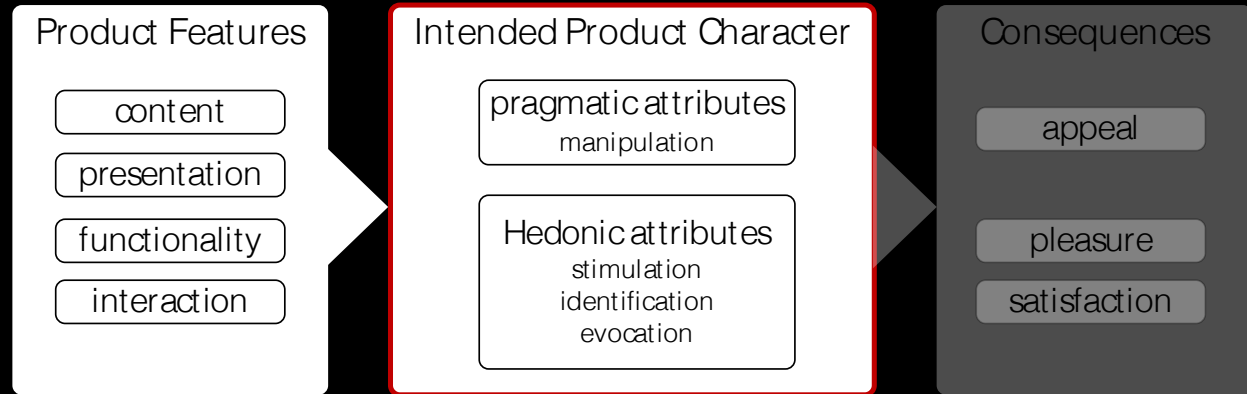

User
perspective:

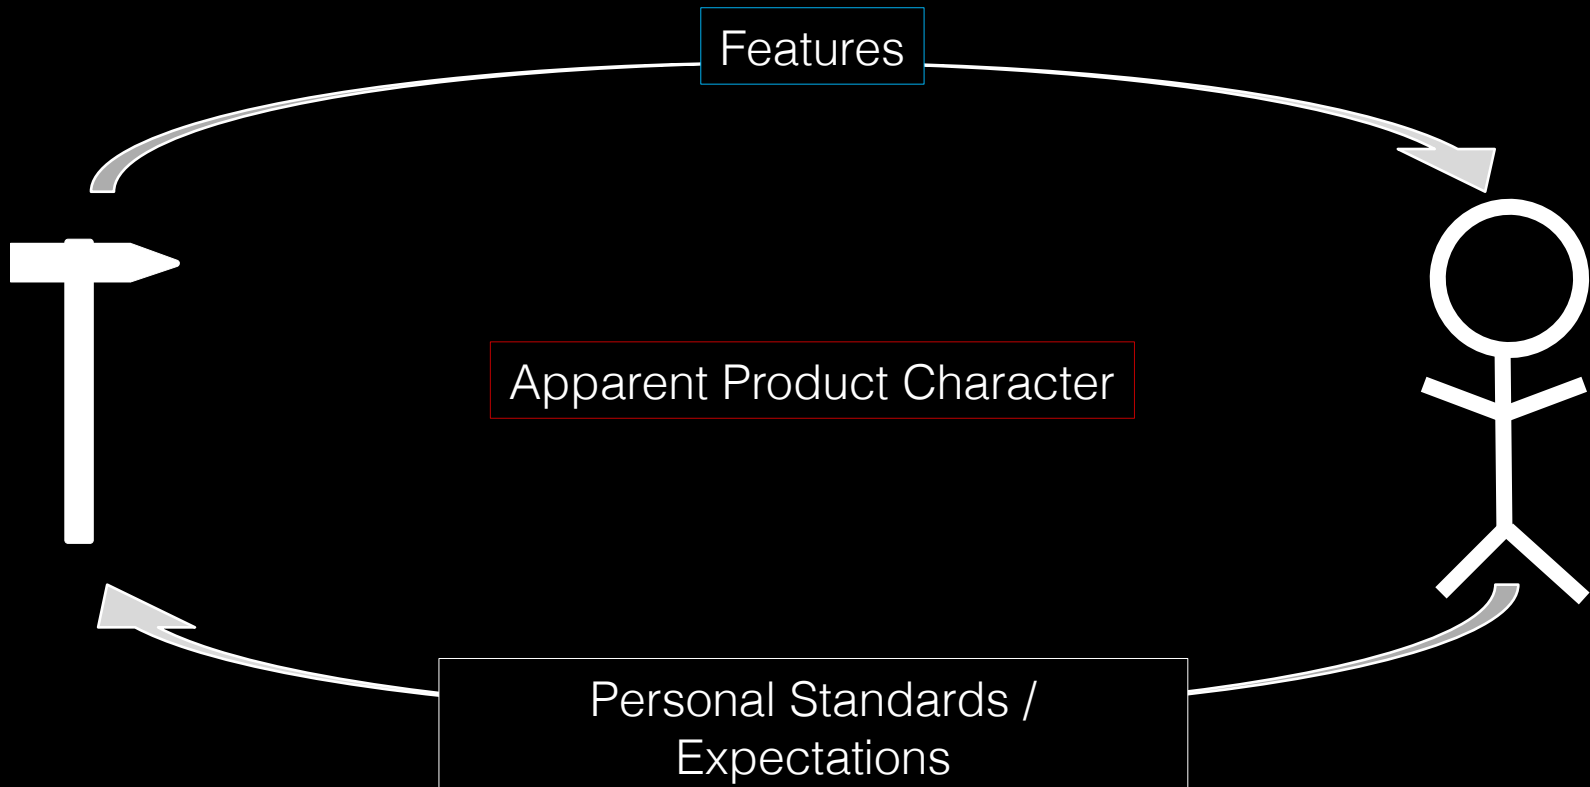

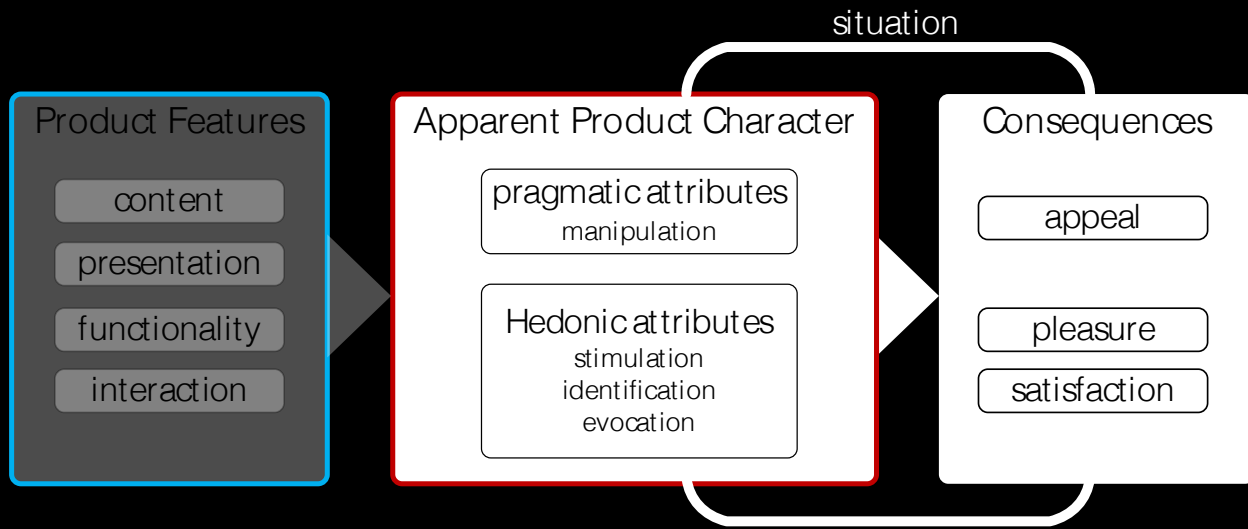

Designer
perspective:

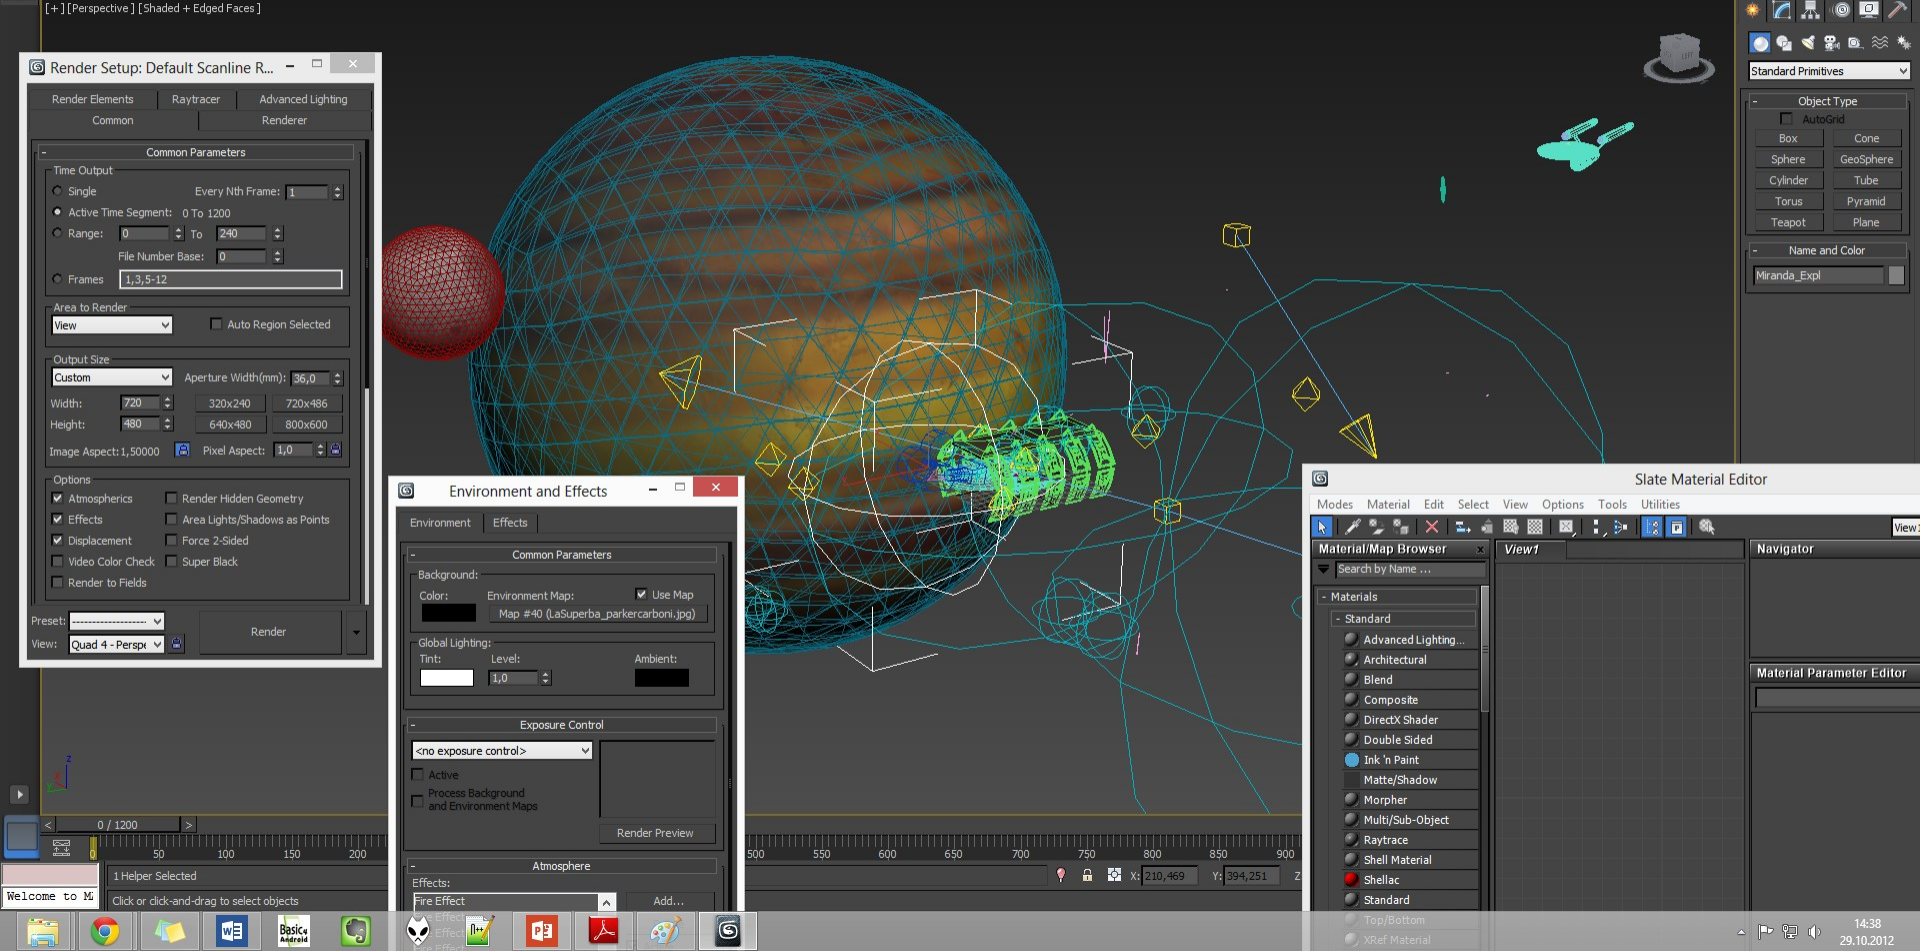

Designer
perspective:

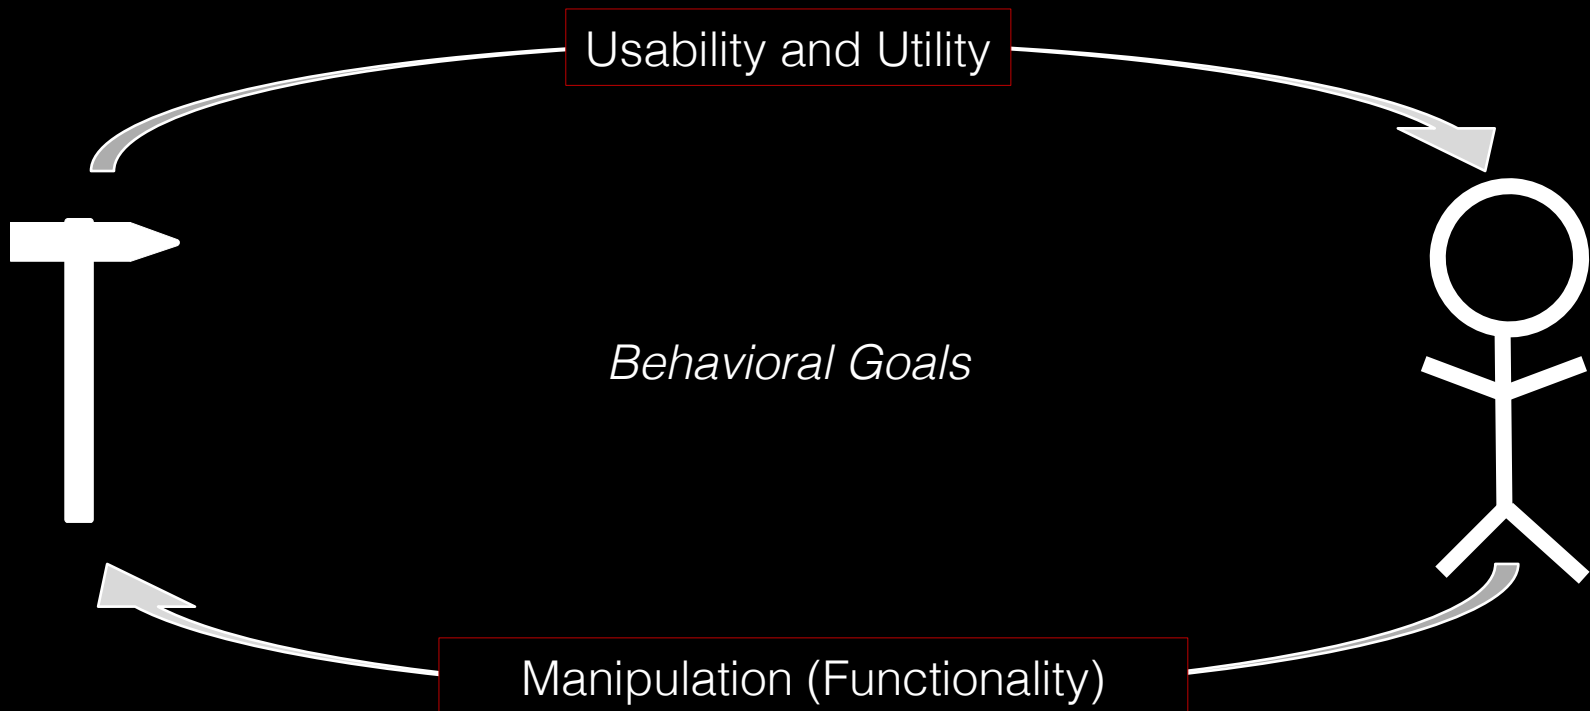

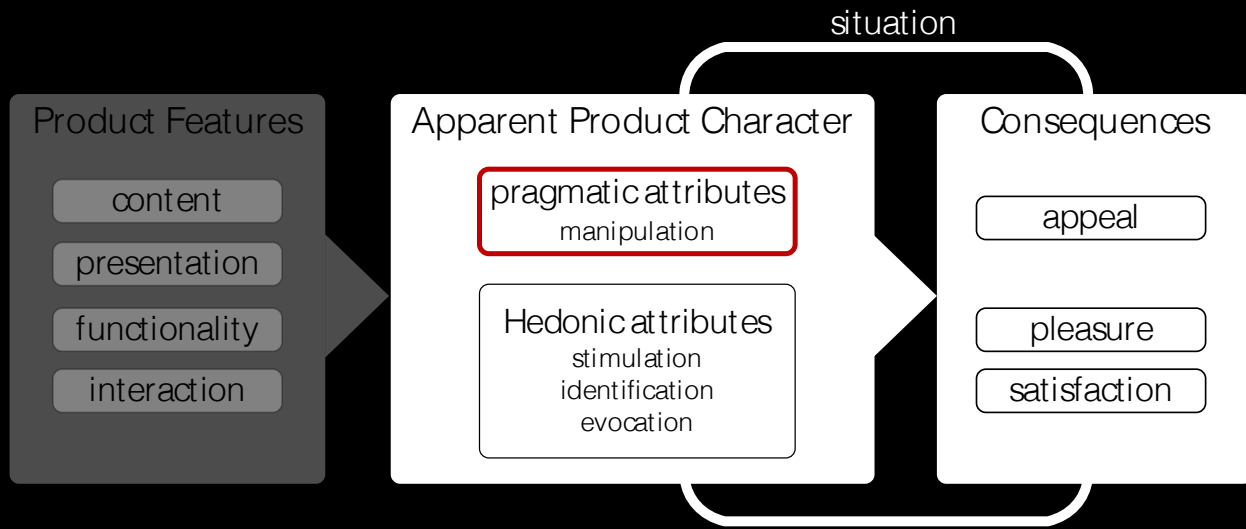

User
perspective:

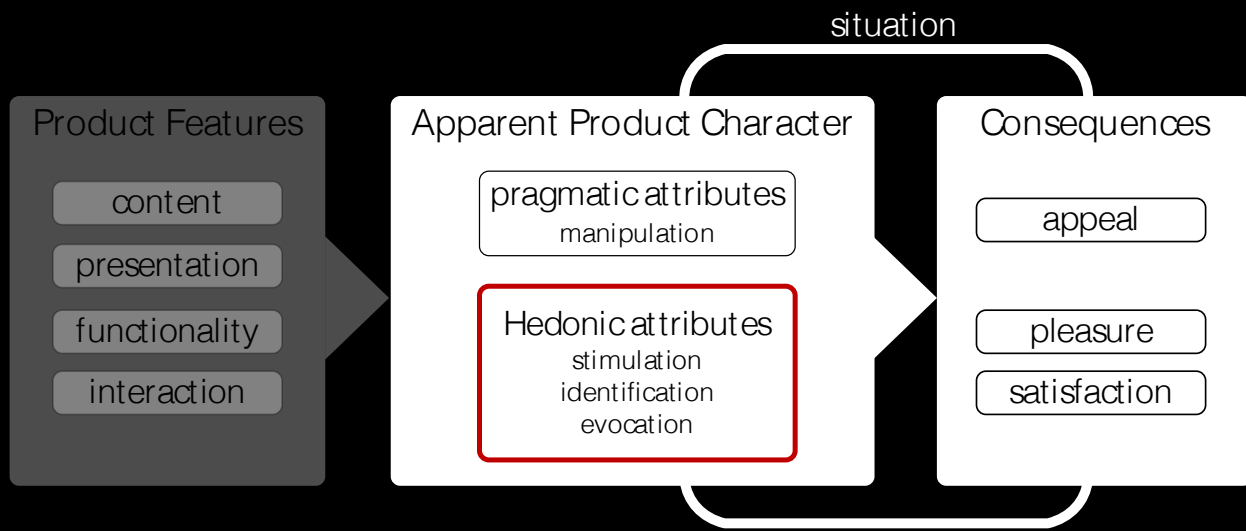

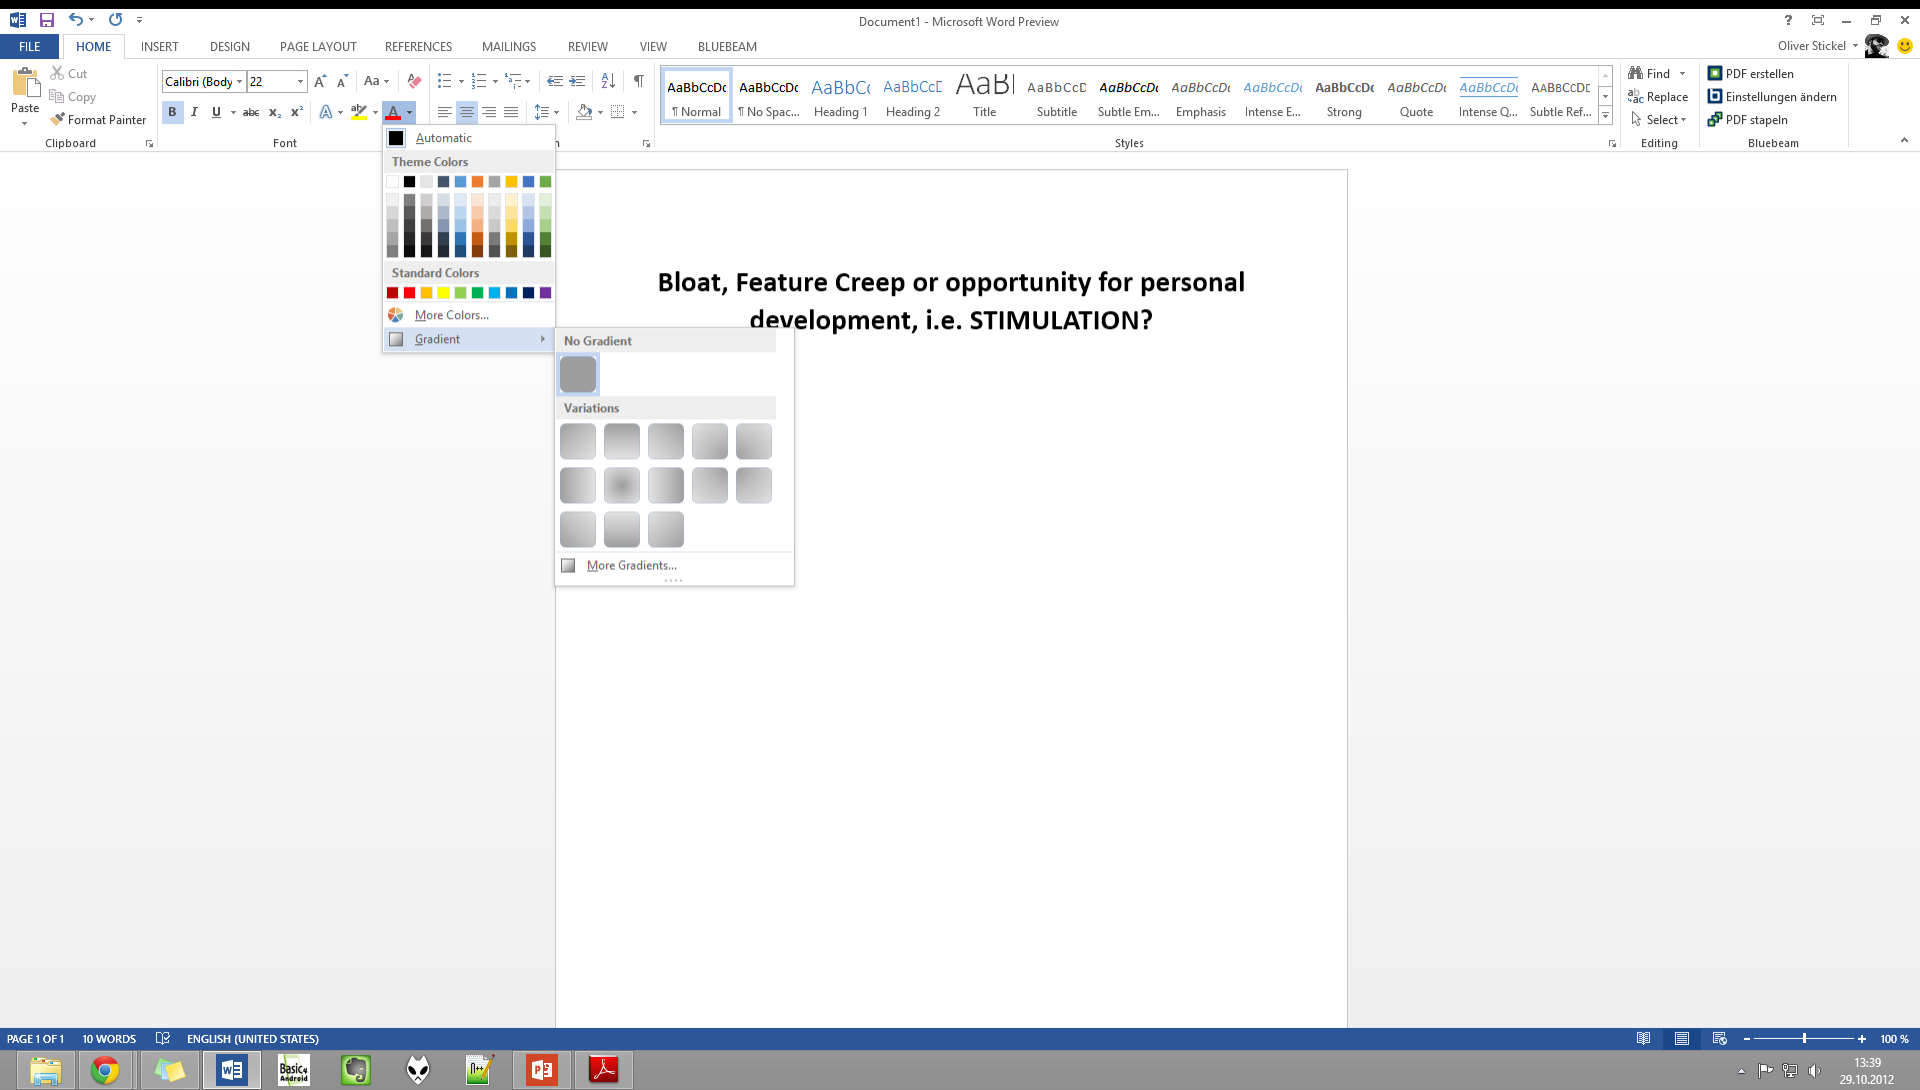

User
perspective:

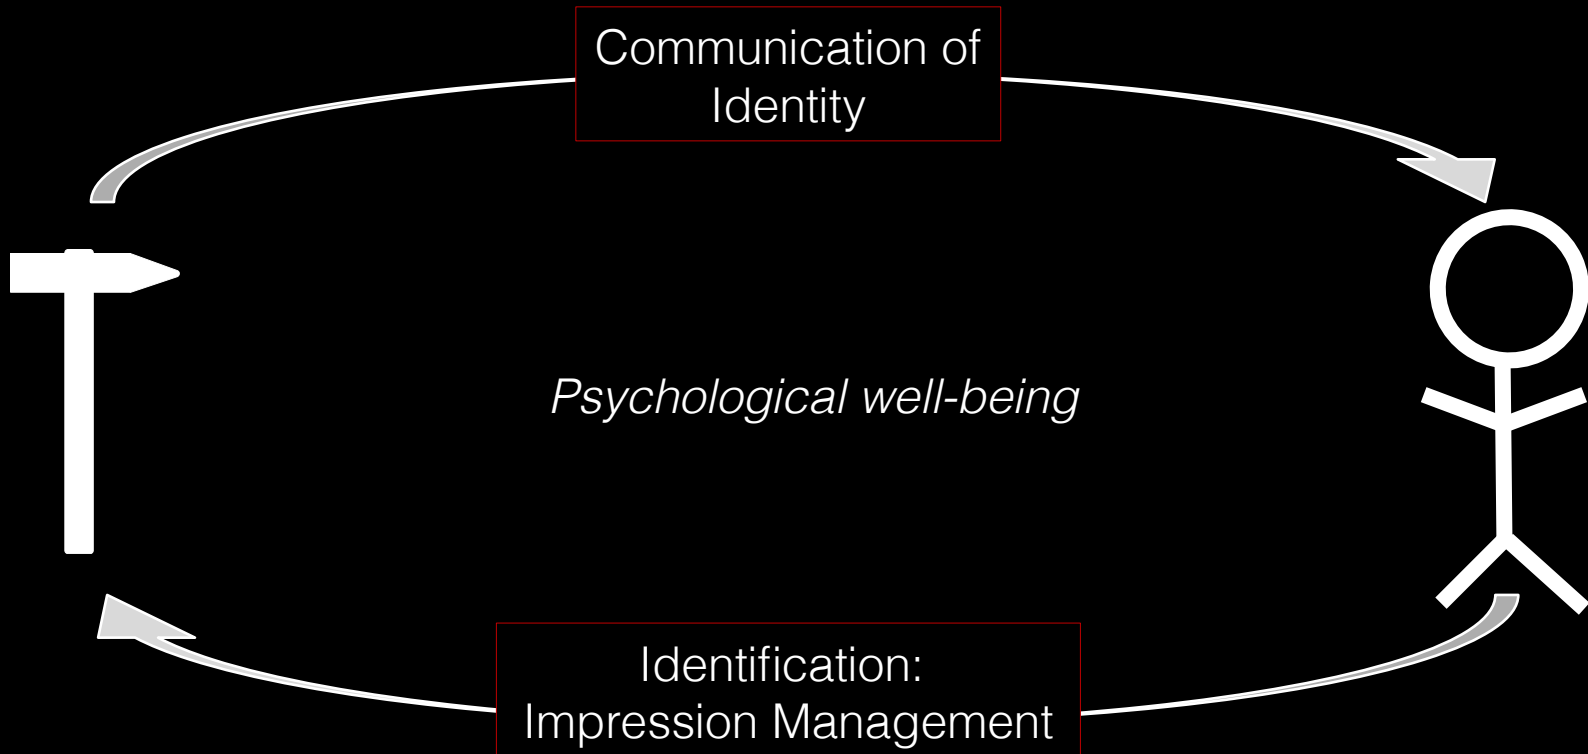

User
perspective:

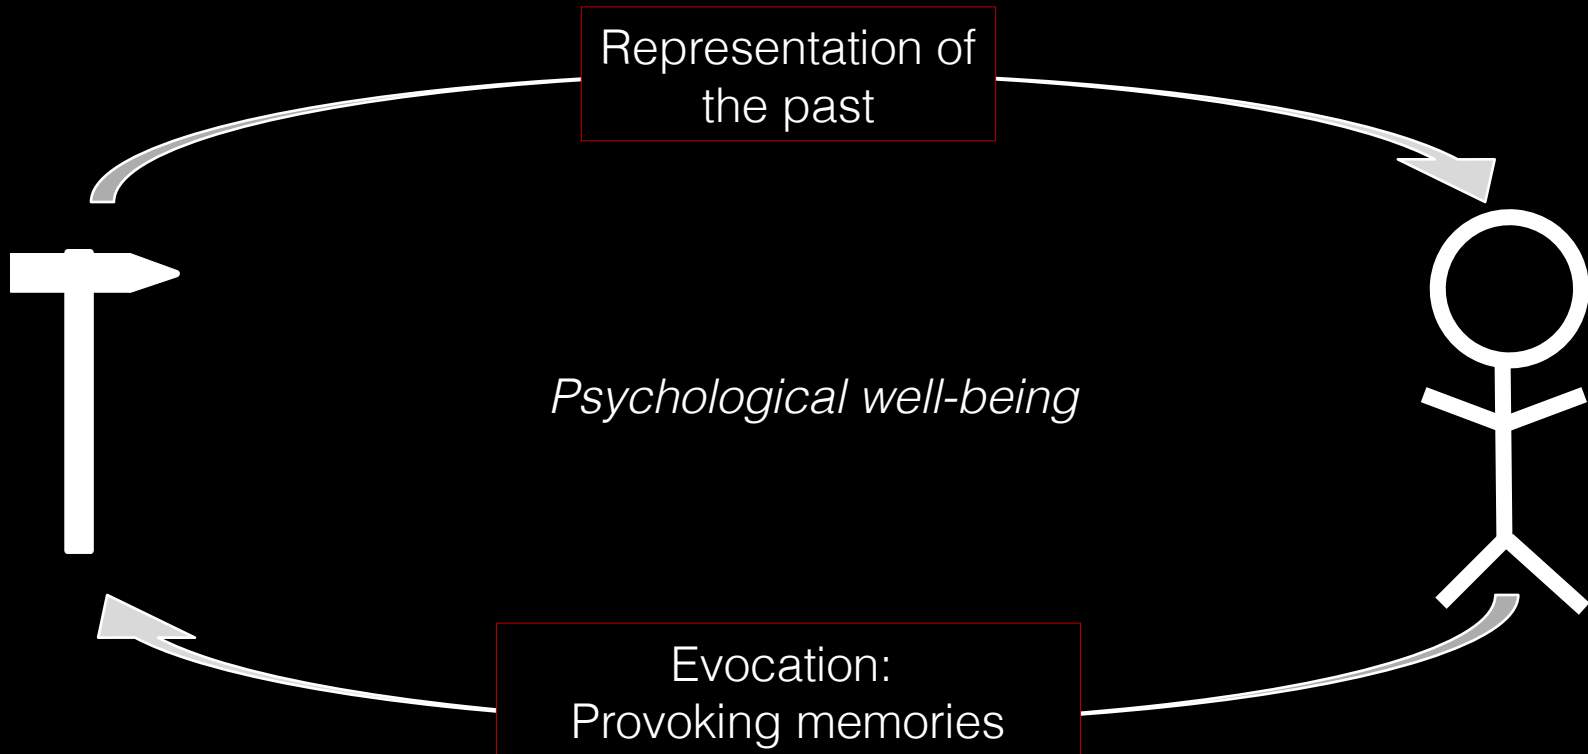

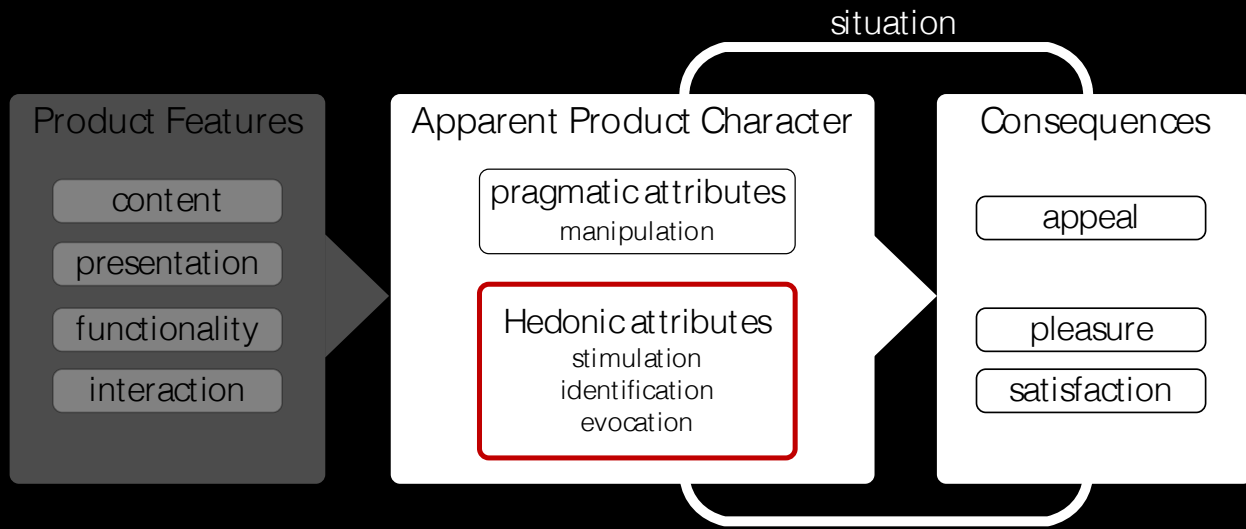

User
perspective:

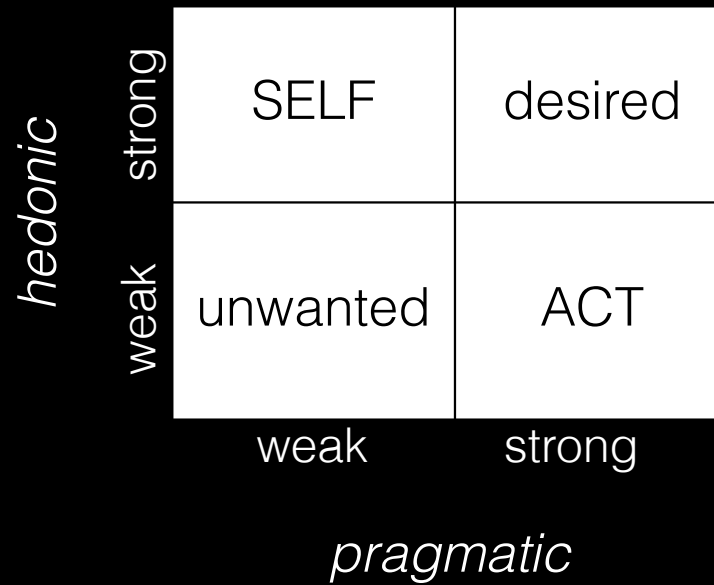

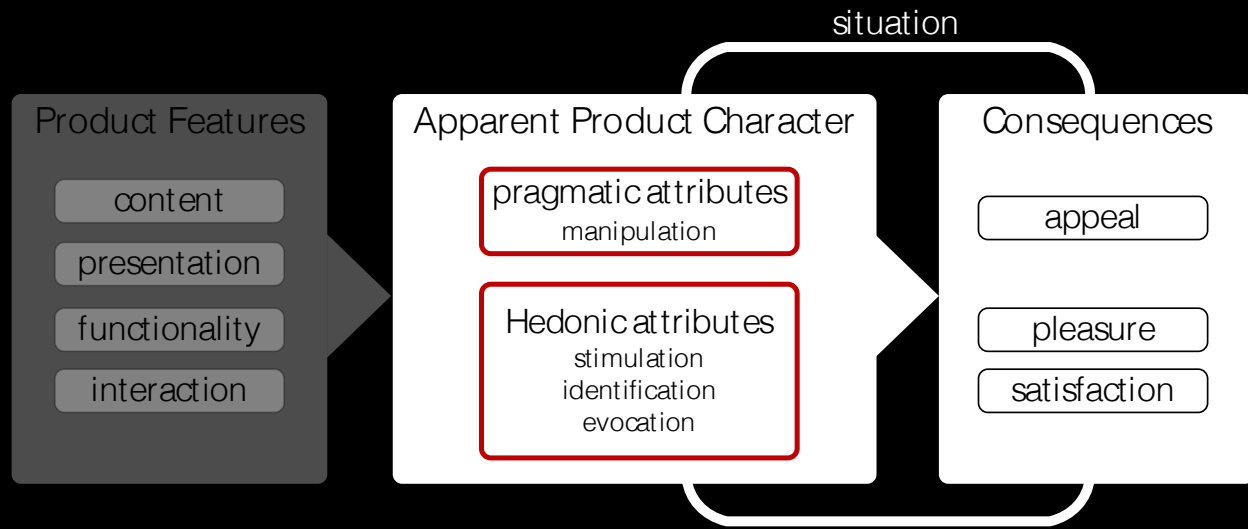

User
perspective:

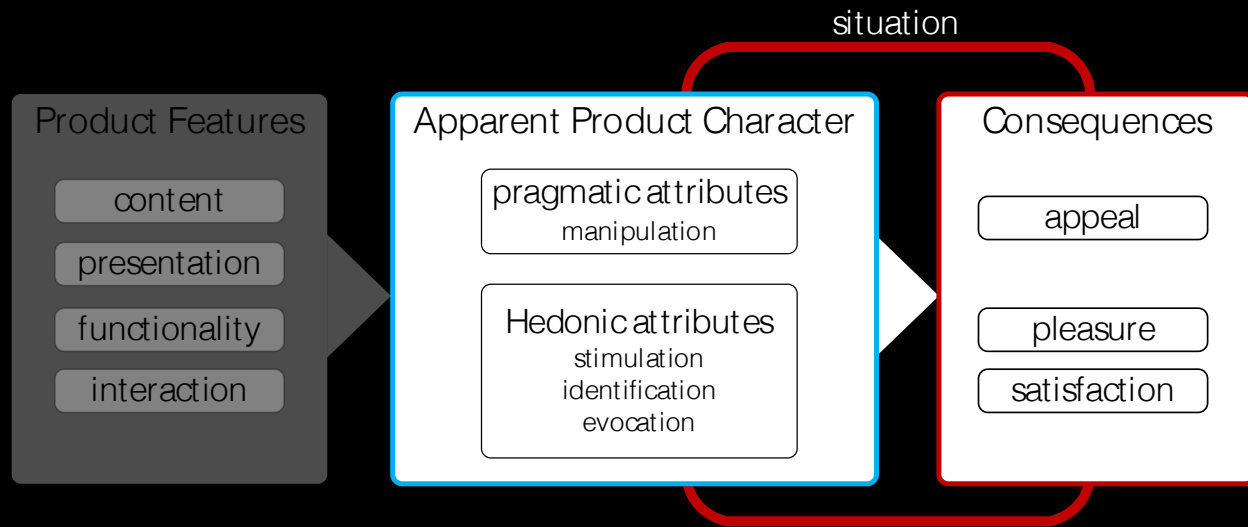

User
perspective:

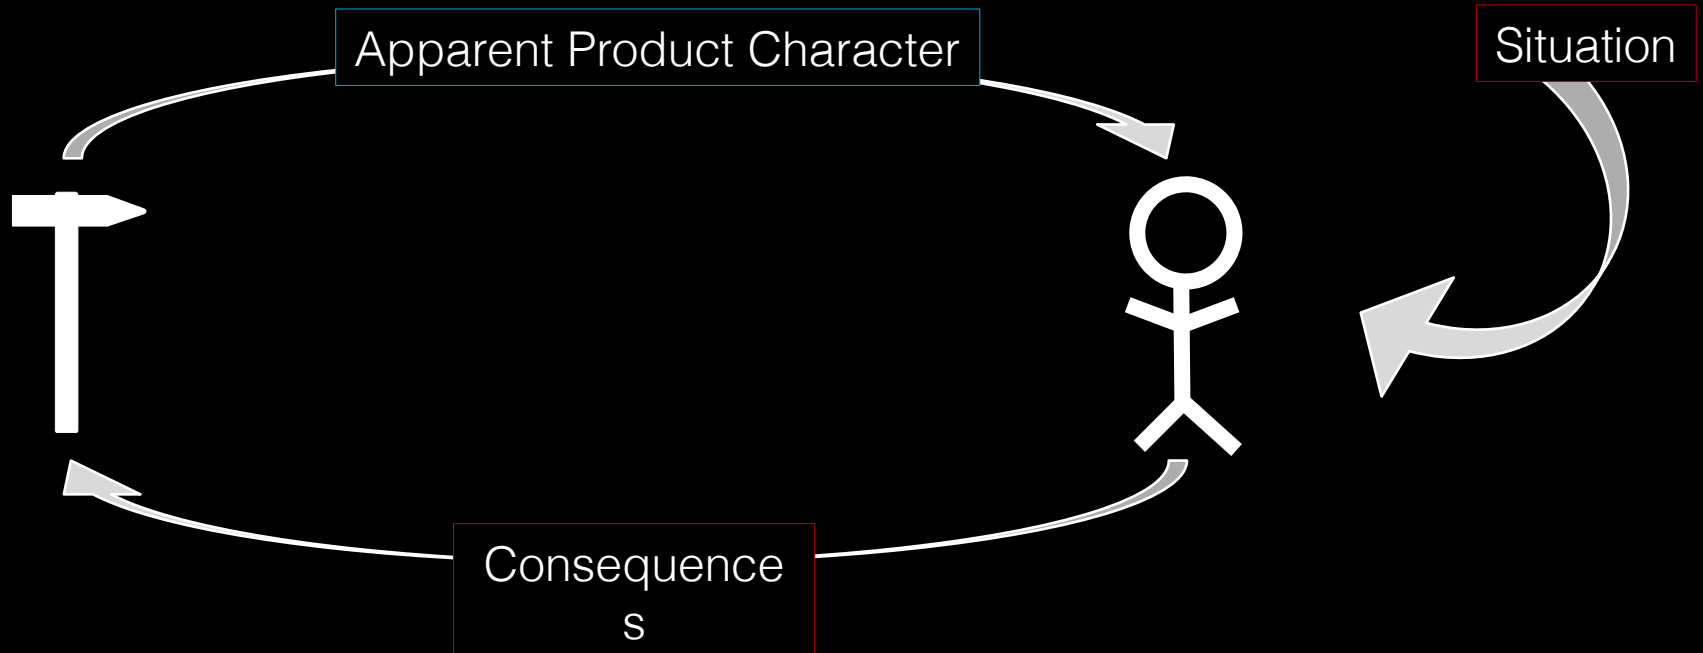

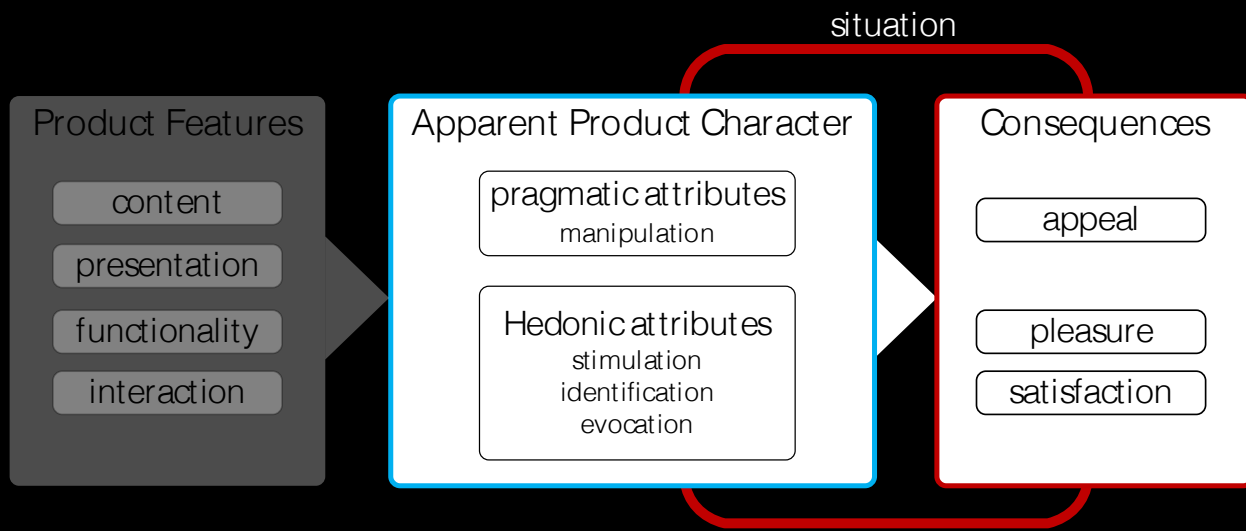

User
perspective:

Satisfaction as HCI design goal: A Positive attitude toward the product (ISO 9241-11)

This is superficial!
(Hassenzahl)

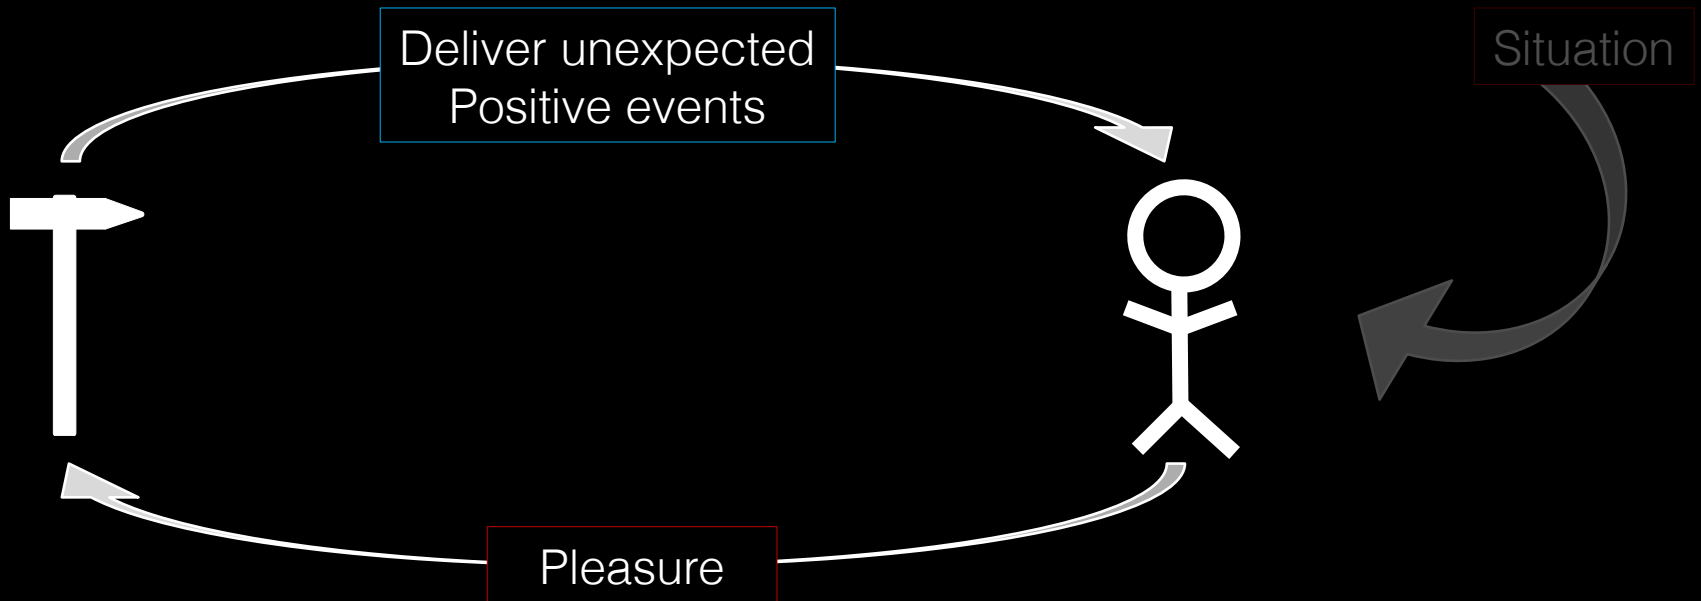

User
perspective:

User
perspective:

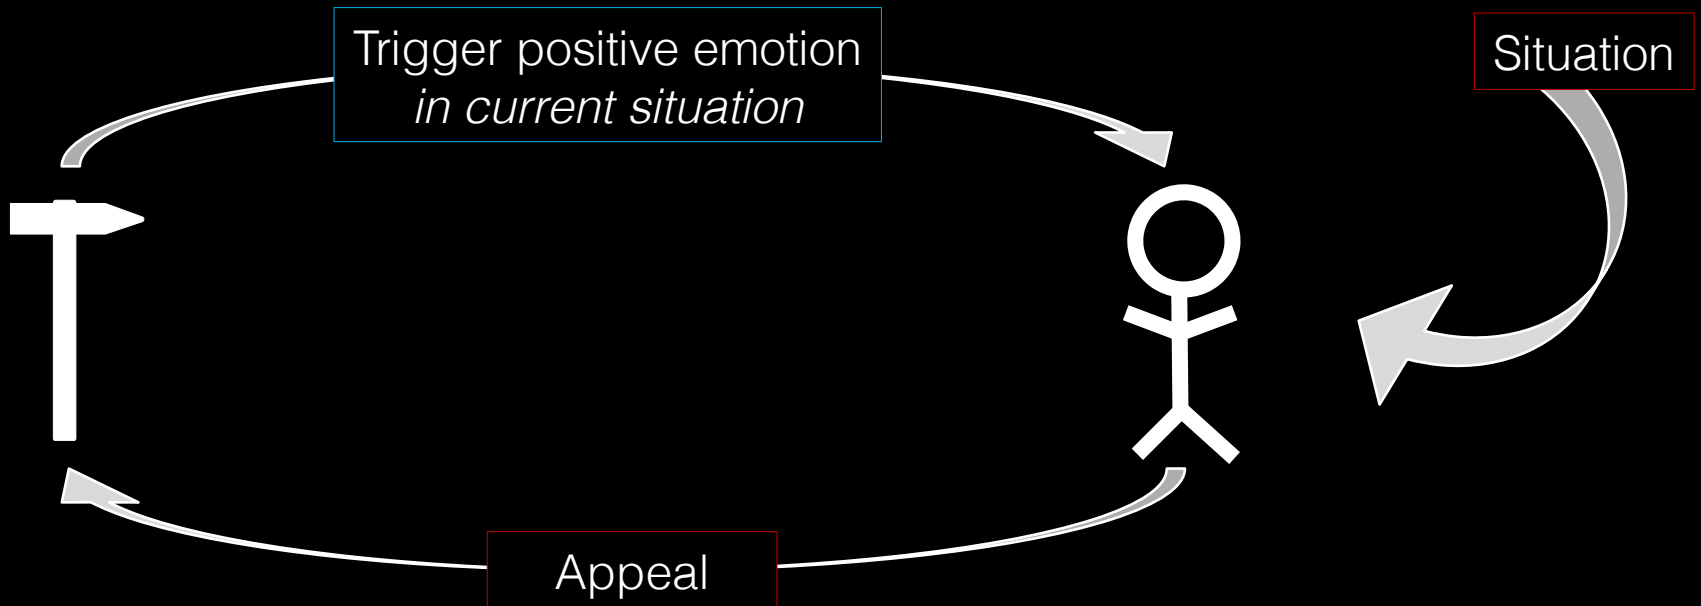

User
perspective:

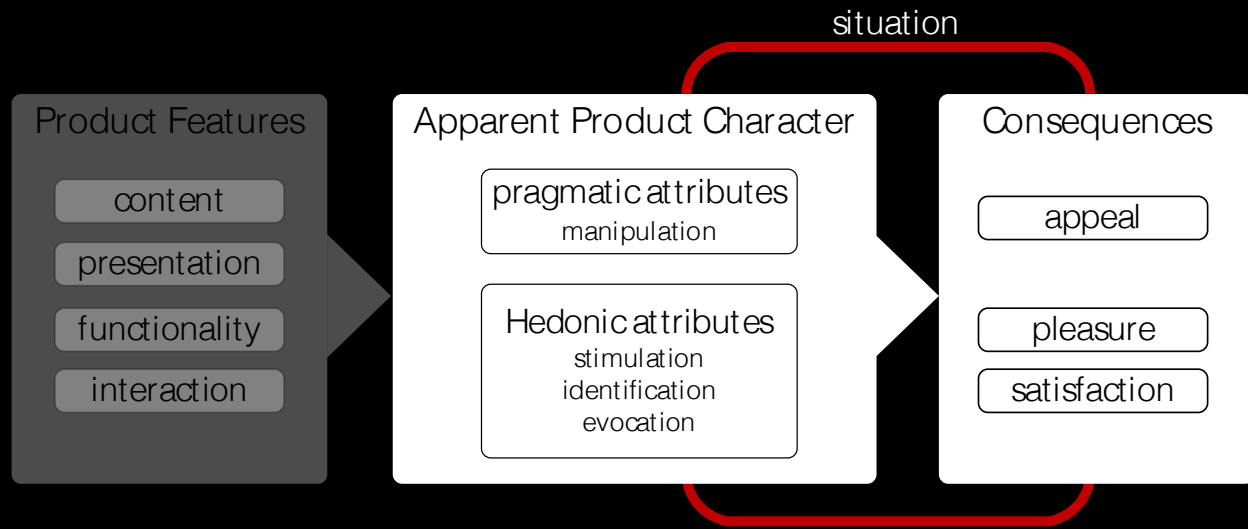

Dropbox
50 GB

User
perspective:

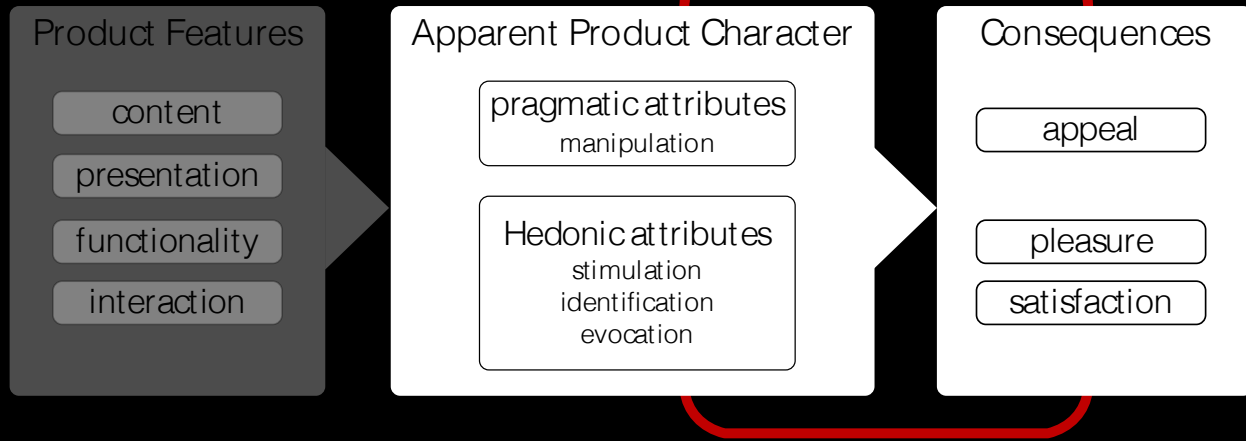

User
perspective:

User
perspective:

Action
mode

Playful Volatile Goals „End in itself“

Desired
Boredom

A vertical arrow labeled Arousal points upwards, indicating a scale from Boredom at the bottom to Desired at the top.

User
perspective:

Goal mode

Goal determines actions Product as means to an end Efficiency is key

Anxiety

Desired

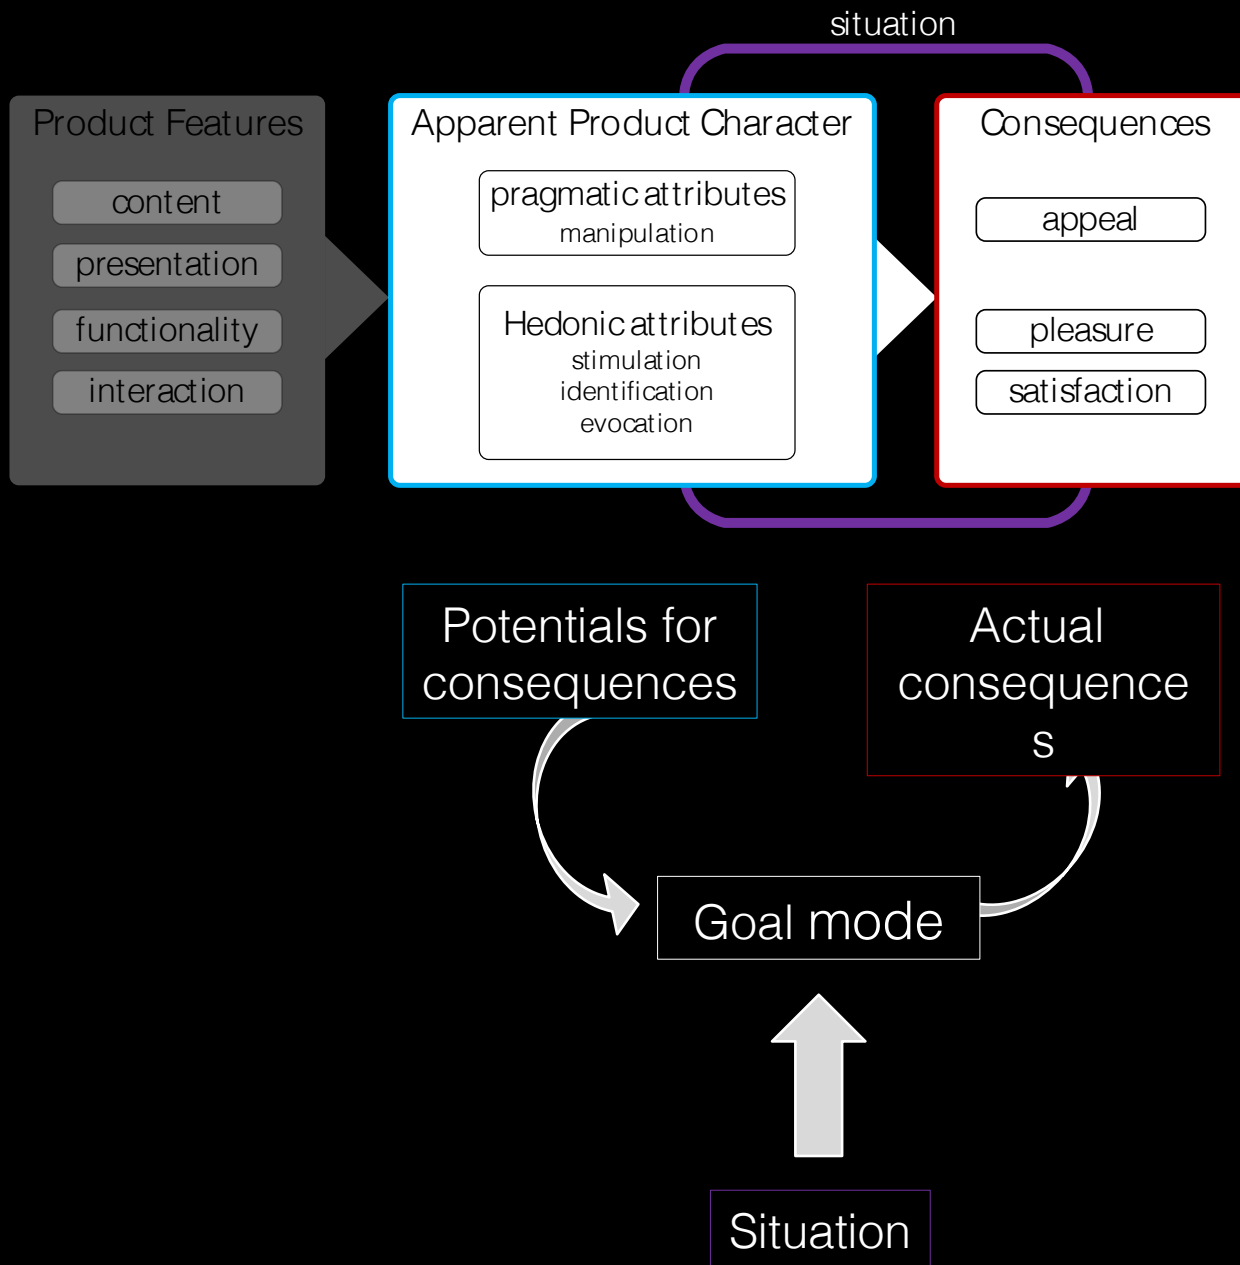

Arousal

Complex software, user without experience

Project, deadline: Goal mode

Free time: Action mode

Model is preliminary

Lacks empirical proof

Model (diagram) is semi-complete

Model is catchy (can be dangerous)

Basis for designers

Basis for operationalisation

